THE FRENCH MINISTRY OF JUSTICE

Maintenance on EDM

Sopra Steria - a leader in consulting, IT services and software development in Europe - has announced the renewal of its contract held with the French Ministry of Justice for the past four years.

Sopra Steria Solution

Sopra Steria will once again be handling the third-party multi-application maintenance of EDM (Electronic Document Management) applications for the next four years for the French Ministry of Justice. This will also include further developments, with the aim of simplifying document access and promoting information exchanges between the ministry's departments and its various partners.

In an effort to support the ministry in its paperless programme for the penal and civil systems, Sopra Steria will be relying on the Numérisation des Procédures Pénales (Digitisation of Criminal Proceedings / NPP) application. The "MESSAGER" application enables the digitisation and coverage of the entire validation chain for correspondence produced and received by the ministry's central administration.

As for the "NPP" application, it helps simplify the work of Magistrates and Clerks To The Court on documents that are still officially in paper format, while ensuring greater fluidity in the progress of proceedings as well as real-time access to criminal case records.

“The success of this project aimed at serving the general public is the fruit of the close and successful partnership formed between CTS and Sopra Steria, as well as a whole range of stakeholders such as telecommunications operators, design firms, hosts, ticket printers, TAG manufacturers, banks, etc. We are proud to be among the first to launch such an offer in France.”
